Recently it has seemed that the spirit of ex treme partisanship was going out of our politica. You might be a Republican or a Democrat-but your arguments, if they were to appeal to thinking men, had to be based on fairness and the truth colored at the most by only a moderate degree of prejudiced in his reference to the alleged lack of intelligence on the Republican side of the House and Senate. Referring to Republican members of Congress, the President made this altogether surprising statement: "Some of them are misguided; some of them are blind; most of them are ignorant." It would be interesting to know in which class Mr. Wilson places Senator Root of New York, Senator Burton of Ohio, and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, to mention only a few of the Republicans in Washington who stand no lower in intelligence and in patriotism than the President

Mr. Wilson was very unfair in his reference to the stand of the Republican members of Congress against the ship purchase bill. He was very unfair in his description of the Republican attitude toward a tariff commission. The Indianapolis speech was, of course, directly political in purpose-but we have come to a time when many Americans, who may still in a general way be regarded as party men, like their partisanship in less heroic doses than of old .- Times-Star.

anybody. Exercise in the open air, eat a light supper, spend a quiet evening, and retire quietly. If you do not sleep, do not worry or fret. What you lose one night, you will make up the next. If you do not, what difference does it make?"

People who are afflicted with insomnia will experience a relief from reading this advice. The remedy is living right-taking exercise, eating lightly at supper time, spending a quiet evening, cultivating kind thoughts, don't get rattled, don't be morose. In this aspect of the case insomnia as a fault rather than a misfortune. There is a great obstacle in the way of the remedy-it is so hard to live right .-- Ashland Independent.

the growing public sentiment against him has not fully matured. The United States Department of Agriculture thinks that one of the best ways to arouse such sentiment would be by changing his somewhat innocuous name. Now we call him the Housefly, which sounds innocent and doesn't exchanged to the Manure Fly, because he is born in manure and loves to abide in it. If flies were commonly called manure flies nobody would tolerate them about the house, spreading filth and the germs of typhoid and other virulent diseases.

We believe in our country—the United States of COUGHED ALMOS America. We believe in her constitution, her laws, her institutions, and the principles for which she stands. We believe in the American people, their genius, the brain and their brawn. We believe in their honesty, their integrity and dependability. We believe that nothing can stand in the way of their commercial advancement and prosperity.

We believe that true progress is through evolution, not revolution, and that what the world needs is not a radical change but continued per severence in well doing.

(The above creed has been widely distributed by a prominent New York banking house.)

The economic side of industrial accidents is t be placed before the people of Ohio in the big Safety First Congress to be held in Columbus John C. Pecor, Druggist, Maysville, Ky. in January. An adequate idea of the economic losses resulting from accidents will be sought. The report of the State Industrial Commission shows more than 50,000 in a year with upwards of 350 deaths from injuries. Reduction of the number by proper measures is believed possible, and will be the subject to which attention will be given in a serious manner.

Railroads are the second largest industry in the country. They have just received an increase of rates that will yield $30,000,000 a year additional revenue. GREAT SUCCESS' SAYS EN-QUIRER OF MAYSVILLE MAN'S PLAY.

While the critics have not been inordinately cordial toward Marie Dressler in her new farce, "A Mix-Up," at the Thirty-ninth Street Theater, the public has taken the rough-and-tumble comedienne to its heart and apparently the piece is as great a success as it was on the road during its preliminary tour. It is the first effort of a former young Washington newspaper man, who seems to have just exactly fitted Miss Dressler with a part after her own pe culiar style. She plays the role of the prima donna of the Boulevard Burlesquers, who, in a highly picturesque and startling evening gown, strays into the sanctum of a pair of newlyweds, a city apartment, mistaking it for that of a sister artist. The young wife happens to be spending the night with mother. and the young husband has enough sense of humor to take the visit philosophically. But at the unexpected moment the young man's wealthy aunt and uncle from up-state pounce in to pay him a visit, and what follows is enough to fill out the evening with the sort of humor that has no other description than that of farce. An element of novelty is introduced by showing on transparent screen what is happening to the absent wife at her mother's Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell of West home, an expedient which is very popular just now and owes its origin to the motion picture entertainment-New York Correspondence to Sunday's En
